The Kingdom of God

that is the smallest of all the seeds.
But once it is sown,
it springs up
and becomes the largest of plants.

The Marian Fathers of the Immaculate Conception

From Fr. Walter's Desk... "The Higher Road"

Just possibly this is a topic not discussed enough, or written about enough, but yet happens nonetheless. I mean, not discussing it doesn't make the reality of being hurt by the Church go away or simply not happen. If anything, it makes the hurt worse because ignoring it does not allow for the hurt to heal.

It is tough to deal with hurt directly, to be the first to open the discussion. This is probably true in any relationship. It is even tougher to admit that one is wrong, and thereupon to apologize. Who knows? Maybe the renewed discussion will go south and get worse? Certainly nobody wants that!

Despite these concerns, Jesus calls us to heal and to be open to healing. It was what He witnessed by His own life. And despite His own obstacles and setbacks, He still lived out this message. He witnessed by His own life that nothing in life is worth causing one to stop trying. In the end, the Lord states, all things will work out well for him who believes and trusts in the Lord. A spiritual teacher named R. Warren states it best when he says: "The deepest level of worship is praising God in spite of pain, trusting Him during a trial, surrendering while suffering and loving Him even when it seems He is distant."

What does the Bible say? Let's look at Timothy 3:2-5. "For people will love only themselves and their money. They will be boastful and proud, scoffing at God, disobedient to their parents, and ungrateful. They will consider nothing sacred. They will be unloving and unforgiving; they will slander others and have no self-control. They will be cruel and hate what is good. They will betray their friends, be reckless, be puffed up with pride, and love pleasure rather than God. They will act religious, but they will reject the power that could make them godly."

This is how Timothy looked upon the world of his time, and we might as well say that this is how he views the world today. This must not be our description! If we accept Christ, and I know that all of us want to, then the description given by R. Warren above must be what we embrace; and in living it, proclaim to the world that this is who we are, and what we live by. And even add to it! The deepest level of worship is speaking to the Church minister who has offended me, or the fellow teacher, or the fellow parishioner! The deepest level of worship is found by hearing each other out, saying what hurts us, being open to apologizing: saying either please forgive me, or I forgive you. Ironically, by holding a grudge, I am not "Church" regardless of where I go to worship at Mass. It is when I can forgive or offer forgiveness that I can awaken to find that I have become "Church," regardless of where I go to worship at Mass. This is called choosing the higher road. Let's all walk on it! God bless you!

Peace, Fr. Walter

Dignitatis humanae

The Second Vatican Council's Declaration on Religious Liberty

On December 7, 1965, the Second Vatican Council approved Dignitatis humanae, the Declaration on Religious Liberty. The Declaration addresses a question that comes up in every generation: how do we understand freedom, truth, and the relationship between church and state?

Religious freedom includes two important aspects – freedom from and freedom for. “Freedom from” is probably familiar and what most of us think of as freedom. It means that we are to be free from coercion. The state is not an all-powerful institution that can force people to act against their consciences.

The right to be free from coercion limits the power of the state. But this freedom must be paired with a “freedom for,” a positive orientation to seeking and acting in accordance with the truth. People have both a right and a duty to seek religious truth. Freedom from coercion allows the space for the pursuit of religious truth. Religious freedom requires that a society both refrain from preventing people from living out their religion and help to create the conditions for religious expression to flourish. A free society, then, is one where people actively seek religious truth and fully live out that truth in public and private. As Pope Francis recently said in Cuba, the Church must have “the freedom and all the means needed to bring the proclamation of the Kingdom to the existential peripheries of society.”

Human beings are social creatures. Religious freedom means that not only individuals but also families, communities, and institutions enjoy the space to live out religious convictions. Parents have a fundamental right to teach their children their faith. Companies that seek to contribute to the common good by their responsible business practices should be encouraged. Religious freedom belongs to groups as well as individuals.

This social dimension of religious freedom entails that religious freedom includes the freedom to practice our faith in public. In our culture, some tend to think that religious liberty means only that individuals can worship without interference from the government. This understanding is inadequate. Religious schools, hospitals, and charities should be able to operate in accordance with their faith. Indeed, the work of these organizations is part and parcel of their faith. They are expressions of religious mission, and religions must have the space to live out their missions.

As the title of the Declaration suggests, human dignity is central to Dignitatis humanae. A most precious aspect of being human is the two-fold capacity to exercise reason and to respond to found truth. It is natural to ask, How do I live a good life? Who created this wonderful world, and how should I respond to this Creator? Why is there suffering, and how should I alleviate it? Religious traditions offer answers to these deeply human questions. It is imperative for the sake of human dignity that people are free to pursue these questions. The pursuit of truth involves an ability to listen, for God has made us with a capacity to hear his Word. Religious freedom is the cornerstone of a society that promotes human dignity. It is a fundamental human right, for it follows on the duty of all people to seek the truth about God.

My dear Parishioners!

I would like to thank you very much for your enormous good and kindness for my Parish. Thanks to your generosity we were able to start works of changing our roof. Without your help it would not be possible. I will be permanently informing you about the process of the renovation. I would like to inform you that in the period from the 20th June to the 5th July we will have joy of the next our meeting in the USA. Your Parish of Our Lady of Peace with Fr Walter as its Leader is present in our everyday prayers.

Let us not become weary in doing good, for at the proper time we will reap a harvest if we do not give up. Therefore, as we have opportunity, let us do good to all people, especially to those who belong to the family of believers.

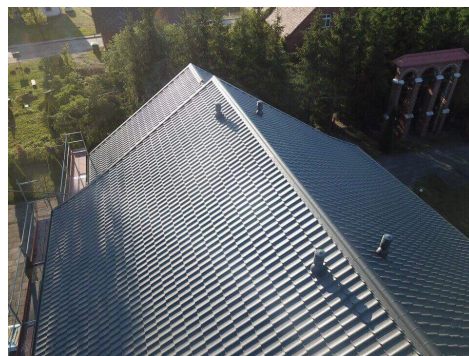

Galatians 6:9-10

Our Lady of Peace Celebrates Feast of Corpus Christi with St. Maximilian Kolbe Parish in Sucha na Pomorzu, Poland.

On June 3, 2018, two parishioners from Our Lady of Peace Parish joined the parishioners of the St. Maximilian Kolbe Parish in Sucha, Poland to celebrate the Feast of Corpus Christi. St. Maximilian Kolbe Parish is pastored by Fr. Piotr (Peter) Lubecki, who has visited Our Lady of Peace Parish briefly for the past two years.

Sucha is a very small village located in the Kuyavian-Pomeranian province in Poland, and under the Diocese of Pelplin. It has a population of about 400 people, with the main economic activity being subsistence farming.

While there, the OLOP parishioners witnessed progress on the church repairs, especially the roof repairs, for which OLOP parishioners donated funds through an appeal from Fr. Peter the end of February of this year. Fr. Peter in his homily, paid glowing tribute to the parishioners of OLOP for their generosity in making the repairs possible. It was gratifying to observe the appreciation of the St. Maximilian Kolbe parishioners to OLOP parishioners for helping in the provision of a new roof for their church building. It is also necessary to point out that there is more work needed to be done on the church building- new windows, doors, and landscaping for which donations will be welcome. Below are pictures of the roof repairs and scenes from the Corpus Christi Feast.
